Life Beyond the New Bund

CLASS OF 2024

We are delighted to celebrate the achievements of the Class of 2024, to date NYU Shanghai's largest cohort of graduates. Armed with cross-cultural competency, critical thinking skills, and resilience, our graduates have begun to make a global impact beyond the New Bund campus.

The 2024 Life Beyond the New Bund report highlights 430 graduates from 34 countries and regions pursuing diverse professional paths in 18 countries and regions - from academic research to finance and technological innovation.

The Class of 2024 has impressed us with its competitive academic performance. In addition to a record 25 graduates pursuing doctoral studies at prestigious universities worldwide, two have secured positions at top research institutes, contributing to a more innovative and inclusive world.

As NYU Shanghai embarks on its next decade, we are proud of our graduates' achievements and support for our educational mission. We wish them success in their future endeavors and look forward to their visits back to the New Bund campus.

> Schwarzman Scholars and NYU Shanghai have a very similar vision – building bridges between China and the world. Winning the scholarship opens a new frontier for me to keep doing that. Working on a wide range of tasks and leading different organizations at NYU Shanghai equipped me to lead effectively, understand other cultures, perspectives and positions, and develop empathy.

First Destination: International Marketing and Alumni Coordinator, YK Pao School

Being an NYU Shanghai student, especially during the pandemic, made me resilient and highly adaptable. NYU Shanghai taught me to fight for what I wanted, and when I did so, magically, doors would open for me. This international experience in China has given me the opportunity of a lifetime. I truly believe that I can succeed anywhere in the world, and I find myself ready for whatever may come.

Daryl Goh

Hometown: Singapore

Major: Business and Finance

First Destination: Investment Banking Operations Analyst, UBS

What I enjoyed most during my time at NYU Shanghai was the ability to be exposed to a wide array of people from different backgrounds, all of whom were able to offer eye-opening insights into issues across the globe. This helped me leverage my global perspective in my interviews and eventually my work and adapt to different global trends, ensuring that I was able to keep an open mind while working across different global teams within UBS investment banking operations.

Aevyn Lan

Hometown: Princeton, USA

Major: Humanities, Global China Studies

Minor: Chinese

First Destination: English Teacher, Julia Gabriel Education

My main goal at NYU Shanghai was to be immersed in Chinese culture and to learn Chinese. In this process, I found my interest in early years education. Children make me happier than anything else, because you get to see every little thing that you do does impact them. When you do get to see their positive growth, it's like nothing else.
