

Postdoctoral Fellow
Center for Business Education and Research
NYU Shanghai

New York University Shanghai invites applications for Postdoctoral Fellows at the Center for Business Education and Research (CBER) for the Academic Year 2019-20. This fellowship entails a combination of research and teaching/academic support opportunities.

Fellowship Responsibilities

Postdoctoral Fellows will be involved in high quality and impactful research projects on various business topics. The potential responsibilities may include, but not limited to, the following tasks:

- Conduct original research publishable in top academic journals with advice and guidance from research faculty associated with CBER.
- Participate in joint research projects between CBER and other institutions/organizations.
- Develop business case studies for both educational and research purposes.
- Write articles, essays, and industry reports on timely topics in business.
- Assist and/or host CBER conferences and workshops.
- Attend research seminars as required.

On the academic side, Postdoctoral Fellows are also responsible for leading recitation sections, holding office hours for student consultations, and providing other teaching support to Business faculty as required. Fifteen hours per week are expected on teaching related activities.

In addition, Postdoctoral Fellows are expected to engage with the larger intellectual life of NYU Shanghai by presenting their scholarly work at various possible venues in the university, participating in or possibly organizing academic events of interest to the academic community, or otherwise contributing to the intellectual mission of the university. A sufficient amount of time should be devoted to the Fellow's self-directed research. The selected Fellow is also expected to remain in residence for the full contract term, but will have sponsorship for travel to conferences and research sites.

What We Are Looking For

Applicants should be genuinely interested in research, capable of executing research projects with little supervision, and be able to conduct research and write papers/reports in English with a high level of fluency. Fluency in Mandarin is desirable, but not required. Qualified candidates must be recent Ph.D./ABD in Business or Economics related areas, be familiar with Chinese markets and have a strong background in statistics. Previous teaching experience is strongly preferred, but not required.

Application Process

The review of applications begins immediately, and will continue until the position is filled. The position begins in the Academic Year 2019-20. An earlier starting date is also possible. The ideal candidate will be appointed with CBER as a full-time Postdoctoral Fellow.

To be considered, applicants should submit the following materials. Please visit our website at <http://shanghai.nyu.edu/about/work/fellowships> for instructions and other information on how to apply. If you have any questions, please e-mail lucy.xu@nyu.edu.

Applications must include:

- Cover letter explaining applicant's interest in this position.
- Two letters of reference that address the applicant's intellectual and pedagogical strengths (must include committee chair or members for ABDs).
- Curriculum Vitae (CV).
- Copy of all graduate-level transcripts.
- Brief statement of academic and research interests.
- Writing sample (10-20 pages) drawn from the applicant's own research or a copy of published work(s).

About CBER

Located in the heart of Lujiazui, Shanghai's leading financial center, NYU Shanghai Center for Business Education and Research (CBER) aims to promote innovative research on China-related business and to inspire academic collaboration among industry leaders, business faculty and students through a variety of co-curricular activities. A distinctive feature of CBER is a robust research environment, one that supports interdisciplinary studies in business, liberal arts, and sciences. It also provides a varied, multicultural learning environment that gives students a global edge and a unique competitive advantage. As some of CBER's faculty members are well-established experts in the field of marketing, economics, and finance, they strive to integrate a wealth of real-world experience and business acumen into academic and research activities.
