Writing & Speaking Fellowship at NYU Shanghai

New York University Shanghai is excited to announce the search for Writing and Speaking Fellows

NYU Shanghai is the third degree-granting campus in NYU's global network, joining NYU in New York and NYU Abu Dhabi. It is a world-class, comprehensive liberal arts and sciences research university in the heart of Shanghai with half of the student body drawn from China and half from over 60 other countries.

The Writing and Speaking Fellowship is a unique position designed for young professionals who have recently completed their academic study programs. Candidates should have a passion for education and wish to share this enthusiasm with high-achieving students. Experience teaching is helpful, but not required. Evidence of initiative, judgment and skill working with people from many different cultures is valued. The Writing and Speaking Fellowship provides unique opportunities to explore teaching, work closely with faculty, serve an international population, gain administrative experience, and enhance a developing university community both as a leader and community member.

The primary responsibilities of the Writing and Speaking Fellows will be to provide tutoring and academic support to undergraduate students. In addition, each fellow partners with a University department to provide curricular or co-curricular support. The Fellowship also includes the opportunity to pursue a yearlong Scholarship Project on a topic and in a medium of the Fellow's choice.
